About Our Speaker

A native of Greenville, South Carolina, Kevin is a graduate of The Citadel and a post-graduate of Virginia Tech University. After extensive success in C-suite positions for companies including Fluor Corporation and Rental Service Corporation, Kevin's next career adventure led him toward helping private business owners and leaders to succeed not only in business, but also with an enhanced quality of life. An ensuing purchase of Chief Executive Boards International facilitated this calling in which Kevin re-energized a legacy organization to provide an elite, business leader peer advisory growth and development experience.

After multiple assignments throughout the world, Kevin continues to lead Chief Executive Boards International and enjoys facilitating the platform with which company leaders throughout the U.S. improve their businesses and life fulfillment. When he's not working to assist others with their success, he enjoys travel adventures and living on Fripp Island, South Carolina with his wife, Angelina.
